New Books of Travel and Description

Labrador By Dr. Grenfell and others

For seventeen years Dr. Grenfell has known bleak and beautiful Labrador as only a physician does come to know the inner life of a people. And he succeeds in making his reader feel the weird beauty of the color-play of the arctic auroras on mountain scenery, the tense importance to life of the cod-fisheries, the interest of the reindeer experiment—makes one share his own feeling that both country and people are tremendously fascinating. In addition, chapters on the botany, geology and zoology of the country round the book out into the only adequate description in existence.

Cloth, illustrated from photographs, $2.25 net; by mail, $2.39

Mexico By William E. Carson

Whether one wishes an enjoyable book of travels or is especially interested in this "wonderland of the south," Mr. Carson's account is, says the New York Sun, to be heartily recommended. He describes things as they are, talks genially of history and politics when it is necessary to a clear understanding, tells of trade and industrial conditions with no axe to grind, and is, in short, intelligent and entertaining; a book of permanent value.

Cloth, illustrated, $2.25; by mail, $2.39

The Old Town By Jacob A. Riis

"There is a freshness, a simplicity, a sincerity about it that is simply captivating," says the Philadelphia Ledger. The reader loses himself and becomes a boy again, revisiting the quaintest, most charming old historic town in Denmark

Cloth, illustrated by W. T. Benda, $2.00 net; by mail, $2.14

A Wanderer in Paris By E. V. Lucas

A companion to "A Wanderer in Holland," "A Wanderer in London," etc., and full of the same pervasive atmosphere of pleasant personality. His aim is practical and so admirably executed as to make the book essential to any visitor to Paris. But his attractive human touch fills this study of the famous city with a delightful atmosphere.

Cloth, 16 plates in colors, $1.75 net; by mail, $1.89

IN PRESS FOR EARLY ISSUE

Dr. Sven Hedin's fascinating book on Trans-Himalaya

It covers a remarkable achievement, related with such straightforward simplicity, that it is only at the end one begins to realize that this man was for two long years crossing Tibet in all directions with four governments and all the authorites of the land as his opponents. And for the value of the geographical results obtained, one of these same governments on his return—made him a knight.

In two 8vo volumes, Cloth, probably $7.50 net

Do not overlook your trade in these descriptive books. They are prized as gifts of more permanent value than novels, and there is a larger profit in handling them.

Warning to the Trade!

This is to warn the entire book trade of these United States—from the North Pole to Colon—that the surprise among the season's gift books is bound to be—as inevitable as bills, taxation, gray hairs, death and Roosevelt--

The Bridge Fiend

By ARTHUR LORING BRUCE (Just Published)

Here is the dope on this extraordinary little book:

(1) It costs only a dollar—barely more than an Elsie book or a hand-painted Christmas Card.

(2) Of all the holiday covers, the cover on "The Bridge Fiend" is the bulliest—and the yellowest. It is a truly excellent bit of artistic fooling.

(3) It contains over 300 pages—mostly composed of jokes, jocosities, joshes, jibes and jeers.

(4) The frontispiece is in Louis Fancher's most amusing and original vein. The ladies in it make the Nell Brinkley girls look almost life-like by comparison.

(5) There is no other work in the world in any way resembling it. It is absolutely unique among the 57 known varieties of Bridge books.

(6) It is the ideal gift for every bridge maniac—male or female, incipient or incurable, committed or at large.

Price, $1.25

WHAT other juvenile can compare for a minute with a book of boys' adventures based on the most up-to-date of all themes, and by Young America's favorite author? It is bound to sell at the slightest mention. The story is of two boy heroes who chanced on board a polar ship, and who pass through marvellous experiences that result in the attainment of the very "top of the world," side by side with Cook and Peary. All the practical details of polar exploration are given, and the thrilling romance of the "Call of the North" is made evident. The book is also rich in the history of great discoverers, and is profitable reading from that point of view without impairing its wonderful interest as a story.

ANNOUNCE AN IMPORTANT NOVEL

To be Published in November

THE TYRANT

By MRS. HENRY DE LA PASTURE

12mo. Cloth - - - - Net, $1.25

This new novel, written with almost more than Mrs. de la Pasture's accustomed charm and humor, is a tale of love and manners in the picturesque setting of a little old-world Welsh village.

"The Tyrant" is the story of a domineering and miserly squire, who gives the keynote to the tale in the beginning, by planning to disinherit his own son. When away on a long voyage in search of health, his wife makes a discovery which quite changes the complexion of affairs. The largest part of the book is taken up with the interweaving of a double love story of the most idyllic kind, which, together with the author's well-known ability at character drawing, makes a book sure to please; yet the author's introduction of the powerful and dramatic exhibition of the tyranny of pain over a tyrant lends force to a book otherwise notable for the charm of its telling.

Mrs. de la Pasture is now in this country assisting Maxine Elliott to stage her latest play, "Deborah of Tod's," a dramatization of Mrs. de la Pasture's novel by that name, and as Mrs. de la Pasture's work is being widely reviewed by the newspapers "The Tyrant" will be in demand.

"Here is a book, a fine book, about a dog of might and character, a real dog, not a ladies' pet, a dog of iron pluck! We can think of no other dog story that approaches it in strength of description, in sympathetic apprehension of dog nature and in vivid simplicity of style. . . . It is a fascinating record, a story as wholesome and as clean as the cold wind of the morning, and it deserves to become a classic."—N. Y. Tribune.

CUSTOMERS THAT BUY

How to Gather Them In

BOOKSELLERS are naturally interested in methods of attracting buyers—ways of holding the old ones, means of securing new ones—especially during the holiday season.

An outlay of ten, twenty, or even fifty dollars, is not a very large sum to spend in order to attract the attention of the best buyers to your display. The money might easily be wasted in ineffective local advertising or in pithless circulars, but it can be used to the greatest direct advantage by sending the "CHRISTMAS BOOKSHELF" (a digest of all the important new books of the year of the leading publishers) with your exclusive imprint on the cover, to the people of means and position in your vicinity. It is by far the best holiday list that is issued anywhere, and the recipient always feels flattered in receiving a copy.

THE CHRISTMAS BOOKSHELF (which is the Christmas Number of The Publishers' Weekly on somewhat thinner paper) is supplied in lots of 100 at 10 cents each; 250 at 8 cents; 500 for $38.00; or 1000 for $75.00.

☞ If you want a supply we must hear from you promptly as we print only for advance orders. We can promise delivery by the end of November.

GEORGE H. DORAN COMPANY

WHO WROTE IT?

A man or a woman? And of what nationality?

Here is a book published quietly in September, which is creating a literary sensation. Critics and readers scattered widely are praising it, blaming it, and hazarding guesses as to the author's identity.

THE JOURNAL OF A RECLUSE

"TRANSLATED FROM THE ORIGINAL FRENCH"

"A most remarkable book," says the Journal of Education. "Readable and enjoyable from the first page to the last. It poses as a translation, but it everywhere betrays its Saxon origin. . . . Wherever and however it originated, it is a marvelously well written book."

"Piques curiosity," says the Literary Digest. "The reader, however, will feel that the journal might never have been penned had the author thought there was a possibility of its reaching the public eye."

"One respectfully declines," says the Living Age, "to believe in the 'original French' theory, for its thought is that of one whose mind naturally expresses itself in English; but one accepts everything else in its pages unconditionally and gladly, for since 'Il Cuore' neither the English nor any European tongue has laid so important a fictitious journal before the American reader."

"The intimate charm of Pepys," says the Brooklyn Eagle, "or of Boswell is there. Literary culture is in every line."

"Prof. Hugo Munsterberg?" hints the New York Times in a first page editorial recently. An open letter to this editor the following week from a reader expresses the opinion that "a woman wrote it—someone with the mordaunt pen of an Edith Wharton."

"The interesting story of an interesting life," says the New York Sun.

The American Flower Garden

By NELTJE BLANCHAN

This sumptuous and valuable book, now issued in its permanent form, reveals those little subtleties which bring delight to the home garden. The author has drawn from a vast knowledge of beautiful foreign and American gardens, and she points out the great principles of all good gardening. The present book covers adequately the needs of the amateur whose garden is either extensive or the reverse; and every fact among the thousands is made quickly available by a fourteen-page index. There are four plates in full color, and eighty plates of sufficient size adequately to treat the subjects presented. With planting lists by Leonard Barron. Regular edition. Net price, $5.00.

Rackham's Undine

Illustrated by ARTHUR RACKHAM

Fouque's famous classic is the kind of fanciful subject which gives Mr. Rackham's imagination full sweep, and this volume will doubtless take its place as the standard edition of this classic. Many illustrations in color and black and white. Net price, $2.50. Edition de luxe, limited to 250 numbered copies. Net price, $6.00.

The Crime of the Congo

By A. CONAN DOYLE

In this graphic and terrible story of the Congo atrocities Sir Conan Doyle makes a ringing appeal to America to intervene and stop the slaughter committed at the instigation of Belgium. Neither author nor publisher will profit from the sale of the book. Cloth, 50 cents. Paper, 25 cents.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY will bring out on November 24 Mr. Bigelow's "Retrospections of an Active Life," which, unquestionably, may be classed as one of the large and important books of the year.

GEORGE H. DORAN COMPANY publish to-day "The Foreigner: a Tale of Saskatchewan," by Ralph Connor, which has been delayed waiting for enough copies to be printed to supply the enormous advance sales.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just published a new book by Mary Roberts Rinehart, author of "The Circular Staircase" and "The Man in Lower Ten," each of which ranks high in the list of books that sell well. The new book is entitled "When a Man Marries," and has a great and unusual quality of humor. There has already been produced an adaptation at the Astor Theatre with great success under the title of "Seven Days." The book, however, has ten times more fun in it than the play.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN CO. will publish on November 27 "Wanderings in the Roman Campagna," by Professor Rodolfo Lanciani, profusely illustrated from photographs and containing the first authoritative account of many important discoveries; the first two volumes of "The Journals of Ralph Waldo Emerson," now first published and edited by Dr. Edward W. Emerson and Waldo E. Forbes; "Preventable Diseases," by Dr. Woods Hutchinson, a part of which appeared serially in The Saturday Evening Post; a history of "The Bourbon Restoration," 1814-1818, by Major John Hall; "The Life and Letters of Josiah D. Whitney," the foremost authority of his day in economic geology, by Edwin T. Brewster; selections from "The Classical Moralists," from Socrates to Martineau, edited by Dr. Benjamin Rand, librarian of the Harvard Philosophical Library; "The Soul's Inheritance, and Other Poems," by the late George Cabot Lodge; and a school edition of "Little Folk Lyrics," by Frank Dempster Sherman.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will have ready next week "Abraham Lincoln—the People's Leader in the Struggle for National Existence," by George Haven Putnam, the head of the firm. This monograph presents the main events in the career of the people's leader. Special attention is given to Lincoln's relation with his cabinet and his successive army commanders. The nucleus of the monograph is the address given by Mr. Putnam on the Lincoln Centennial Commemoration Day, February 12, of this year. With this is included the speech delivered by Lincoln in New York, February 27, 1860, before he was nominated for the presidency, with an introduction by Charles C. Nott, late Chief Justice of the Court of Claims, written in 1908, and annotations by Judge Nott and Cephas Brainerd, of the New York Bar. There is a frontispiece reproduced in photogravure from the portrait by Marshall. Mr. Putnam's part of the work is specially intended to bring before the younger generation what the war meant to those who lived through it, and what the man was who proved the people's leader in the days that to them are only a page of history unless brought home by personal memories of one who has lived it all.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books issued by publishers who protect the prices of their new publications are preceded in this list by the double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. Works of fiction (not net) of which a minimum price is protected by their publishers, are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not protected are preceded by a single asterisk *, and the word net follows the price. ☜

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Abbott, G: F: Turkey in transition. N. Y., [Longmans, Green & Co.,] 1909. 7+370 p. pors. pls. O. cl., *$4.25 net.

Mr. Abbott has long been familiar with Turkey and immediately after the recent Revolution he made a journey there to study the new conditions. The results of his investigations are put forth in his book, which gives a vivid description of the, in many instances, ill-digested Western ideas grafted upon the ancient mode of thought and life of the Ottoman Empire. Index.

Aicard, Jean. The diverting adventures of Maurin: a tr. from the French by Alfred Allinson. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1909. 12+377 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Heroic-comic romance of modern Provence full of typical French gaiety. Maurin is a mighty hunter and a mighty prevaricator whose adventures real and imaginary are most diverting.

Allinson, Alfred. The days of the Directoire; with a photogravure frontispiece and 48 other illustrations of which the costume plates have been selected by J: Colby Abbott. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1910, [1909.] 16+387 p. O. cl., *$5 net.

Vivid account of the years 1795 to 1799, when the five Directors ruled France from the Palace of the Luxembourg. The chief actors of the period, social conditions, and the changes effected by the Revolution are all described. Much of the detail has been gleaned from two contemporary diaries of travellers in France, while many of the illustrations are from old prints and illustrated books of the period. Index.

American Historical Association. The study of history in the elementary schools; report to the American Historical Association by the Committee of Eight: Ja. Alton James, chairman, H: E. Bourne, Eugene C. Brooks, Wilbur F. Gordy, Mabel Hill, Julius Sachs, H: W. Thurston, J. H. Van Sickle. N. Y., Scribner, 1909. c. 20+141 p. 12°, pap., 50 c.

Bibliography (7 p.).

Andreiyeff, Leonidas. A dilemma; a story of mental perplexity; tr. from the Russian by J: Cournos. Phil., Brown Brothers, 1909. 128 p. cl., $1.

Arabian (The) nights; their best-known tales; ed. by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Nora A. Smith; il. in color by Maxfield Parrish. N. Y., Scribner, 1909. c. 12+339 p. O. cl., †$2.50.

Eleven tales, luxuriously gotten up as a Christmas gift-book.

Askew, Mrs. Alice J. de C. Leake and Claude Arthur Cary. Testimony. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1909. 320 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The old theme of a mother jealous of giving her only son's wife the proper place in the household. The scene is a New England farm. The daughter-in-law, a bright city girl, runs away from the farm when her husband refuses to put out his mother. She goes to her uncle in England and lives luxuriously, but her heart brings her back to her husband. She finds him gone in search of her and the mother and the wife learn to know and love each other, and upon his return all goes well.

Austin, Leonard Strong. The metallurgy of common metals, gold, silver, iron, copper, lead, and zinc. 2d ed., rev. and enl., 1909. San Francisco, Mining and Scientific Press, 1909. c. 494 p. il. O. cl., $4.

Author is professor of metallurgy and ore dressing, Michigan College of Mines. First edition appeared in 1907; the text has been entirely rewritten and greatly expanded, the fundamental principles being fully stated and illustrated from existing practice. Index.

Bailey, Carolyn Sherwin. Stories and rhymes for a child. Springfield, Mass., Milton Bradley Co., 1909. il. 12°, $1.

Banks, L: Albert, D.D. The problems of youth; a series of discourses for young people on themes from the book of Proverbs. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1909. c. 4+393 p. D. cl., $1.30 net.

Author is pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, Denver, Colorado, and has written "Hero tales from sacred story," "My young man," "Sermon stories for boys and girls," "Christian gentleman." He describes such problems as a noble career, the liar, peril of making light of sin, wisdom, a merry heart, etc.

Barnett, Evelyn Snead. The dragnet. N. Y., Benjamin W. Huebsch, 1909. c. 383 p. D. cl., $1.50.

By the literary editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal. Plot involves the fight against a trust; disappearance of its president, murder, mystery and skilled detective work. The love plot once more proves how a woman's brain seldom keeps her heart under control.

Barrows, Wayne Groves. The law of the range. Bost., C. M. Clark Publishing Co., 1909. c. 280 p. pls. D. cl., $1.50.

The range runs through the northwest portion of New Mexico. The good old days of the '80's, when many men who travelled on the old Santa Fé Trail "died in their boots," are slowly changing in their dangers and the influence of good women is felt by the roughest settlers. But the author still finds material for a stirring plot.

Belloc, Jos. Hilaire Pierre. Marie Antoinette. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1909. c. 10+559 p. pors. pls. facsims., O. cl., $2.75 net.

Marie Antoinette, who was only a petulant, mediocre woman, with neither heroic faults nor virtues, was by force of circumstances cast to play a part of overwhelming tragedy. It is this figure which Mr. Belloc has drawn against a background of the history of her whole period both in Europe and America.

Benson, Rob. Hugh. The necromancers. St. Louis, Mo., B. Herder, 1909. 374 p. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Bland, J. O. P. Houseboat days in China; il. by W. D. Straight. [N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co.,] 1909. 9+289 p. fold. map, O. cl., $5.

Roads are waterways in China and so it has come about naturally that the Anglo-Saxon in the country has evolved a houseboat suitable for travel along these ways. This book is the record of a delightful trip along the lower Yangtsze with the things seen and done, and people met by the way, and no idea of being instructive or learned. The result is a very readable volume which reveals much of riverside life in China.

Blatchford, Ambrose N. Church councils and their decrees. Bost., American Unitarian Association, 1909. *80 c. net.

Bradford, W: Bradford's history of the Plymouth Settlement, 1608-1650; rendered into modern English by Valerian Paget. N. Y., John McBride Co., 1909. c. 26+349 p. D. cl., *$1.50 net.

Bradford was the second governor of Plymouth. His history of the colony is probably the most valuable original document or source of information connected with American history. Mr. Paget has translated the account into modern English from the old seventeenth century English of the original. Index.

Brewer, I: Williams, M.D. Rural hygiene: a hand-book of sanitation designed for the use of students in the agricultural schools and colleges, and for the residents of the rural districts of the United States. Phil., Lippincott, 1909. c. 10-227 p. pls. figs. D. cl., $1.25 net.

Puts into practical form the information as to heating, ventilation, drainage, water supply, etc., essential to secure perfect sanitation in the country home. The book is fully illustrated and should be timely and helpful in giving a sound basis and right direction to the movement "back to the land."

Brief manual of leading periodicals in the United States and Canada. St. Louis, Mo., Nelson Chesman & Co., [1127-1129 Pine St.,] 1909. pors. D. pap., gratis.

Britton, Wiley. The white slavery; a study of the present trades-union system. Akron, O., Werner Co., [1909.] c. 328 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A plea for the largest possible measure of individual freedom consistent with the equal freedom of all. A plea for the abolition of the slavery of the trades unions and the establishment of free manhood throughout the country; also a plea for the development of fraternal feelings which will strenghen common fellowship and interests.

Brooks, Van Wyck. The wine of the Puritans; a study of the present day in America. N. Y., Mitchell Kennerley, 1909. c. 144 p. 8°, cl., *$1 net.

Twenty sermons by Methodist ministers.

Bruce, Arthur Loring. The bridge-fiend; a cheerful book for bridge-whisters. N. Y., Moffat, Yard & Co., 1909. c. '08. 289 p. front. D. cl., $1.

Amusing anecdotes and discourses, all concerned with the great game of bridge. Incidentally much information may be gleaned concerning the way to play various hands.

Bruce, Kenneth, ["Diedrich Crayon, jr.," pseud.] The return of the "Half Moon." N. Y., Broadway Publishing Co., 1909. c. 147 p. pls. 12°, cl., $1.

Burton, F: Russell. American primitive music; with especial attention to the songs of the Ojibways. N. Y., Moffat, Yard & Co., 1909. c. '02-'09. 281+73 p. front. O. cl., $5 net.

Author has spent much time in research among the Ojibways and these pages are the record of his observations and discoveries. In taking up the folk-songs of the Ojibways, the author appeals to the many students of our primitive history. Part II is devoted to a reproduction of some of these songs with a complementing story with each.

Canby, G: The evolution of the American flag; from materials collected by the late George Canby, by Lloyd Balderston. Phil., Ferris & Leach, [27 S. 7th St.,] 1909. 144 p. il. pls. (partly col.) pors. facsims., D. cl., $1.

The late Mr. Canby, who collected the materials and made the exhaustive researches which have been used by his nephew in this work, was the last surviving grandson of the Betsy Ross who made the first American flag. The different forms of our flag are treated and the causes of the various modifications are given so far as they could be learned. Index.

Author is instructor in the Joliet, Ill., High School and has written "The flora of the upper Susquehanna," "The fern collector's guide," "Our ferns in their haunts," etc. Book presents a connected study of plant evolution and gives lists of questions for answer in notebooks after field or laboratory investigation.

Clutton-Brock, A. Shelley, the man and the poet; with 8 illustrations. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. 23+294 p. O. cl., *$3.50 net.

This is not a partisan biography, either condemning or defending Shelley, but a representation of him based upon his own letters and works, and upon the writings of those who knew him. Mr. Clutton-Brock expresses his own opinion of his subject's character and poetry which, while realizing where Shelley failed morally or artistically, still holds him a fine man and a great poet. Davey, R: The nine days' queen; Lady Jane Grey and her times; ed., with an introd., by Martin Hume; with 12 illustrations. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. 29+372 p. O. (Romantic history; ed. by Martin Hume.) cl., *$3.50 net.

This is practically the first consecutive account of poor little Lady Jane Grey, whose brief, tragic story is only lightly sketched on the pages of history. The reasons for the possibility of her being unwillingly thrust upon England's throne by her greedy relatives are all carefully traced and interesting sidelights thrown on the characters of these relatives. Many portraits adorn the volume, the frontispiece, a picture of Lady Jane, showing her as very charming. Bibliography (1½ p.). Index.

Novelized from the play which had a marked success in New York last year. Story centers round the methods of the police officials who use the "third degree" to force confession from prisoners. The young man who finds himself suspected of murder admits the crime which he did not commit, under pressure that amounts to torture. He is only saved from electrocution by his wife's devotion and wit.

Author is assistant professor of sociology, University of Pennsylvania. He has limited his study to an interpretation of the facts exhibited in Continental United States for a period of forty years, 1867-1906, for which the data are most readily accessible. He thinks divorce is merely a passing feature in the great unrest and friction caused by the changes in modern standards of living to which standards of logical thinking and ideals have not yet become adjusted. He believes in the end monogamic marriage with equal freedom and equal standards of morality for man and wife will prevail. Economic conditions have wholly changed and unchangeable human nature has not yet learned its part in the scheme of culture.

Author is instructor in history at Vassar College. The same spirit which lead the first settlers to New England urged their descendants to make westward when the conventional and established order of the first colonies began to be oppressive to the bolder pioneer natures. These in turn established communities modeled on the old, but with an admixture of the freer life. All through the United States this has been repeated and Miss Matthews in her book traces the homogeneity which really exists in the country back to its New England origin. Index.

Morton, Francis T. The Roman Catholic church and its relation to the federal government. Bost., Richard G. Badger, 1909. c. 257 p. O. cl., $2.

Author is a member of the Massachusetts bar. He thinks that the Roman Catholic church is a menace to the United States because it teaches loyalty to Rome as the first duty of its followers, no matter what that loyalty may cost the Republic. He cites Mexico and other countries that have been forced to drive out the Jesuits and disestablish the Roman church to uphold his contention of its baleful influence on a government and the necessity of checking it.

Sane advice for workers, particularly church workers who frequently in their zeal break many of the laws of hygiene. Physiological instruction and rules for the preservation of health are clearly given and explained, while the common fallacy, that a wholesouled devotion to work may leave bodily health to Providence is combated. Observance of physical and spiritual law is the proper attitude for the Christian. Dr. Schofield is vice-president of the British College of Physical Education and author of "Christian sanity," "Nervousness," etc. Index.

Phil., Lippincott, 1909. c. 54+366; 16+451 p. pls. por. diagrs., Q. cl., $10 net, boxed.

The achievements of the notable expedition were,—that a point within 111 miles of the South Pole was reached; the discovery of the South Magnetic Pole; that there is no such thing as polar calm, on the contrary, the nearer you get to the Pole the more violent the air currents seem to be; the ascension of Mount Erebus, 13,210 feet high, a volcano in full action surrounded by Antarctic ice; eight mountain chains discovered, and one hundred mountains surveyed; the finding of coal deposits, proving that the Antarctic region was at on time covered with tropical forests; and the confirmation of the hitherto accepted belief that the South Pole lies on a high plateau instead of in a polar sea. The English government gave largely toward this expedition and the scientists of Europe have approved the work of the discoverer. A dozen colored plates of artistic beauty and upwards of 300 full-page photographs. Bound in blue and silver and boxed.

Sheehan, Canon Patrick Augustine. The blindness of Dr. Grey; or, the final law. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1909. c. 488 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Dr. Gray was an Irish priest in Ireland. Under a severe exterior he hid a kind heart and a stern conscience. When well on in years his dying sister sent him her daughter from America. This girl became a nurse and went to Africa with a patient against the old priest's wishes. An accident made the priest blind and then his true nature appeared. He learned to control his temper and to find the law of love the one powerful force to influence his people. The author of "Luke Delmege" and "My new curate" has written another story of the Catholic clergy in Ireland.

Mr. Stevenson, vice-president with Cleveland and a prominent lawyer of Illinois, has known most of the famous men and women of his time. The book is anecdotal and is filled with good stories of the bench, bar and legislatures of Illinois and Washington. Mrs. Gaines, who sued the city of New Orleans for $30,000,000, and Mrs. Eaton, the celebrated Peggy O'Neal, who caused the disruption of Jackson's cabinet, were both known to Mr. Stevenson. Bladenburg, the American duelling ground, has its tragic story told here, early days in Chicago and numerous other things of historical, political and personal interest will be found described in these pages with much vividness.

Heroine is Venetian by birth. She is taken from an artist's studio among the slums by a student who wishes to study heredity and puts her among refined surroundings. Without her fault the effects of an evil deed tear her away and then she drifts to Munich and poses for the American artist William Blake for his painting, "The Power of Innocence," and brings him fame and fortune. Theory of crime by heredity is refuted.

Much of the altruism which distinguishes the present age is now turning from the immediate relief of present hurtful conditions to devote itself to the question of heredity as it effects the race as a whole and considering the question of selection in its influence on the mental, moral and physical well-being of future generations. Authors have written this book to emphasize the importance of inheritance in determining the character and value of each individual, drawing on history and recent scientific investigation to support their claim that it is of paramount importance to the state to prevent the perpetuation of undesirable types of people.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

NOVEMBER 20, 1909.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

AMERICAN COPYRIGHT OF ENGLISH BOOKS.

THE present copyright code provides for English books an international copyright protection, based on manufacture in this country, on the condition that a copy of the English book shall be deposited in the Copyright Office not later than thirty days after publication abroad, and that two copies of an American-made edition shall be deposited within thirty days after the deposit of the foreign-made copy. This, it will be noted, gives a double period which may run from thirty-one to sixty days, within which ad interim protection is secured.

While the friends of copyright would have been glad to have a longer ad interim period, it should be remembered that this is a great improvement on the original law, which required simultaneous publication, and caused much inconvenience to English authors and publishers. The new provision is substantially better than this; but there has been some tendency to complain against it and not a little carelessness in complying with its provisions. It may be pointed out that both the requirements must be complied with, if American protection of an English work is to be secured exactly within the letter of the law. If an English copy is not deposited within thirty days from publication in England, this ad interim protection cannot be had. If an American-made edition is not completed and two copies deposited within a second thirty days, i.e., from the date of the deposit of the English copy, then again American protection is not secured. It is at least doubtful if any protection can be assured later if these formalities are not complied with, and certainly no infringer could be called to account for republication made from unprotected English copies.

This may seem a hardship; but it is not so if proper care is taken. In the interest of their own authors and themselves, and in the interest of American publishers with whom they have relations, English publishers should have a care not to publish a work which they expect to copyright in America until they have made sure that the formalities in America can and will be complied with in time. If this is not done, so much the worse for all concerned. We have been always the advocate of an unrestricted international copyright; but we cannot sympathize with those who fail to secure such protection as is afforded, through mere carelessness to take the precaution clearly required by the statute. Half a loaf is better than no bread.

IT NEVER CAN HAPPEN AGAIN.

THE publication of De Morgan's new book, "It Never Can Happen Again," was timed to occur on the date of the author's seventieth birthday, so that the title seems to have one justification in that the author's seventieth birthday surely can never happen again. Appended to the new book is a note of "The Author to his Readers Only," from which we quote the first two paragraphs:

"When, to my great surprise, I published four years since a novel called 'Joseph Vance,' a statement was repeated more than once in some journals that were kind enough to notice it, that its author was seventy years of age. Why this made me feel like a centenarian I do not know, especially as it was five years ahead of the facts. But that was its moral effect. Its practical one was to make me endeavor to set it right. I then learned for the first time how hopeless is the pursuit of an error through the columns of the press, and soon gave up the chase.

"But in the course of my attempts to procure the reduction to which I was entitled, I expressed a hope that the said author would live to be seventy, and, further, that he would write four or five volumes as long as his first in the interim. To my thinking, he has been as good (or as bad) as his word, for this present volume is Vol. II. of the fourth story published since then, and the day of its publication will be the author's seventieth birthday, or, if you consider the day of his birth as a birthday, his seventy-first. I see nothing to be ashamed of in the way this author has come to time, and can (so far) look with complacency on the fact that we are each other."

It must be gratifying to the author and his publishers that the demand for his earlier books continues unabated. Every time he brings out a new novel orders for its predecessors are stimulated, so that booksellers who place an order for "It Never Can Happen Again" also stock up with his "Alice for Short," "Somehow Good" and "Joseph Vance."

NOVEMBER DINNER OF THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE November dinner of the Booksellers' League, held on the evening of the 17th inst., at the Aldine Association, was attended by upwards of ninety members and their friends. The speakers of the evening were Garrett P. Serviss, author of "Astronomy with the Naked Eye," etc., who spoke entertainingly of comets in general and of Halley's comet in particular, referring to their probable influence upon physical life on this earth; Burgess Johnson, editor of Judge, who passed along some bright new stories; Horace H. Jackson, who is now entitled to the prefix, "the Honorable," having recently been elected alderman of the Fifth District of Bridgeport, Conn., who spoke amusingly of his experiences as a statesman since his installation in office; and Isaac Taylor Headland, author of "Court Life in China," etc., who contrasted conditions in China with those in the Occident, or, in what he called the "Gospel lands," and their development since he first visited China fourteen years ago.

THE BOSTON SOCIETY OF PRINTERS VISITS THE MORGAN LIBRARY.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN on November 16 entertained the members of the Boston Society of Printers, who, at his invitation, visited his private library. The delegation came away enchanted with the wonders of typographic and calligraphic art displayed for their inspection.

"We have seen the world's sanctuary of literature," said Henry L. Johnson, president of the society, in speaking of their visit, for he and his companions were permitted to look into the vault opening out from the library in which are stored missals and parchment bound tomes with pages mellowed by the centuries. They beheld volumes which had been the property of royalty, each in its separate wooden case, and other book treasures too numerous to mention in this brief note.

The printers also visited the Lenox Library and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, where they had luncheon. They were entertained in the evening by the council of the Grolier Club, and on the 17th inst. they visited the new Public Library.

A TESTIMONIAL TO THE SCRIBNERS.

FIFTEEN former employees of the firm of Charles Scribner's Sons gave a dinner on the evening of November 18 at Sherry's, New York, as a mark of appreciation to their former employers—Charles Scribner and Arthur H. Scribner. The singular fact was revealed that although some of the men at the table had left the employ of the publishing house more than twenty years ago every man had remained in the publishing business. There were no speeches. A feature of the dinner was the presentation to the Messrs. Scribner of a handsomely bound souvenir volume of the occasion. Those at the table were Edward Bok, of The Ladies' Home Journal; Frank N. Doubleday, Henry W. Lanier, Samuel A. Everitt, all of Doubleday, Page & Co.; Owen W. Brewer, of Chicago; Ernest Dressel North; W. D. Moffat, Robert S. Yard and Edwin W. Hall, all of Moffat, Yard & Co.; A. F. Jaccaci, William Agnew Paton, Winfield Scott Moody, Pitts Duffield, Robert Gilbert Welch, Frederick F. Sherman and George G. Bell.

The Motor Maid, by C. N. and A. M. Williamson.
Bella Donna, by Robert Hichens.
Ann Veronica, by H. G. Wells.
Actions and Reactions, by Rudyard Kipling.
Sailors' Knots, by W. W. Jacobs.
Memoirs of Fifty Years, by Lady St. Heloir, (Mary Jeune.)
The Intruding Angel, by Charles Marriott.

OBITUARY.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER, editor of The Century Magazine, poet and author, died almost without warning, at the home of Mrs. Schuyler Van Rennselaer, 9 West Tenth Street, New York, where he and Mrs. Gilder had been guests, pending the finishing of their new apartments at Gramercy Park. Mr. Gilder was taken ill about two weeks ago while lecturing at the Y. M. C. A. in Orange, N. J. His illness was at first thought to have no serious significance. He was up and about as usual, and it was not until a week had passed, with occasional attacks of pain, that the physicians decided that the heart was affected.

Richard Watson Gilder came of Colonial stock. One of his grandfathers was a trustee of Girard College and a member of the State Legislature. His father, the Rev. William H. Gilder, of the Methodist Church, was founder of Bellevue Seminary, Bordentown, N. J., where Richard was born on February 8, 1844. He showed a precocious leaning toward letters in his boyhood, and before he was twelve years old was setting type for and publishing the St. Thomas Register at Flushing, L. I., whither his father had gone to establish St. Thomas Hall, an academy for boys.

He was always somewhat frail, but when the war between the states broke out he was anxious to fight, and at the time when the Northern cause seemed threatened, in the campaign of 1863, he enlisted in Landis's Philadelphia Battery, serving until Lee was beaten back from Pennsylvania.

Mr. Gilder's first serious editorial venture on his own responsibility was the establishment, in 1868, of The Newark Morning Register, a daily, which he founded and edited with Murray Crane. This was not a financial success, and he gave up his connection with it shortly.

At the age of twenty-six he was offered the editorship of Hours at Home, published by the Scribners. When this publication was absorbed in Scribner's Monthly, organized shortly thereafter, he became associate editor under Dr. Holland, retaining that post for eleven years. When, at Dr. Holland's death, the magazine underwent a further reorganization and change of ownership, becoming The Century, Mr. Gilder followed it as managing editor.

Mr. Gilder's first book of verse, "The New Day," was published in 1885, and in this and the six volumes which have followed are included sonnets and lyrics which have found a setting in the American anthology.

Following his first volume, "Two Worlds and Other Poems" was published in 1891. The reception which these verses met was so universally appreciative that the author was encouraged to publish several successive volumes; in fact, between 1893 and 1898 he brought out four volumes: "The Great Remembrance and Other Poems," "Five Books of Song," "For the Country" and "In Palestine and Other Poems." "Lincoln, the Leader," was published last month by Houghton Mifflin Co.

Mr. Gilder's efforts in the reform of the municipality in which he lived received wide recognition and generous support.

OBITUARY NOTES.

CHARLES BANKS, until 1883 member of the law publishing firm of Banks & Brother, now the Banks Law Publishing Company of New York, died in New York City on November 16. Mr. Banks was born in North Moore Street, New York, in 1830. He was first connected with the firm of Banks, Gould & Co., which in 1856 was succeeded by Banks & Brother.

EDGAR O. SILVER, the founder and president of the firm of Silver, Burdett & Co., died at his home in East Orange, N. J., on November 18. Mr. Silver was born in Bloomfield, Vt., April 17, 1860. He received his early education in the public schools of Bloomfield and Derby, Vt., and later attended Colby College and Brown University, from which he was graduated in 1883. After he was graduated from college he accepted a place with Appleton & Co., and two years later, in Boston, started the business which developed into the corporation of which he was the president when he died. In 1897 he moved to New York, where the business of the company has since been carried on.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

GARDNER TEALL has been made associate editor of House and Garden, under the new management of this magazine, which was recently purchased from its Philadelphia owners by McBride, Winston & Company, at 6 West Twenty-ninth Street, New York.

THE promised "Japanese Correspondence of Lafcadio Hearn" will begin in the December Atlantic and help to distract attention from Meredith Nicholson's "Confessions of a Best Seller," concerning which dispute as to authorship was loud for two or three days, and was then, according to the New York Times, succeeded by a general desire to reexamine his successive works, to the dismay of the attendants at public libraries and the profit of the circulating libraries.

The Forerunner is the title of a new monthly magazine edited by Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman and published by the Charlton Company, 67 Wall Street, New York. Though the magazine will treat "all three phases of existence—male, female and human"—it will have special interest for women, the editor's intention being to "show what man, the male, has done to the world, and what woman, the more human, may do to change it." The main feature of the first year, (the magazine starts with the November issue,) will be the publication, serially, of a new book by Mrs. Gilman, entitled "Our Androcentric Culture, or, the Man-Made World," in which Mrs. Gilman maintains that in the long ages since humanity was first evolved from something else man has steadily been usurping the social functions which are intrinsically no more his than woman's, in that they are merely human and therefore common to the sexes. "Androcentric culture," she says, is "a masculine culture in excess, and therefore undesirable." The magazine will also contain miscellaneous reading matter, poetry, short stories, etc. All of the contents of the first issue, including the advertisements, are written by Mrs. Gilman, and mighty good reading some of it is. The subscription price is one dollar a year. Single numbers cost ten cents apiece.

A NOVEL feature of The Century during the coming year will be a series of essays on "Gardens of the Heart," by Miss Hildegarde Hawthorne—gardens not the work of professional landscapists, but created by the taste and intelligence of their owners, generally women. One of the gardens to be described has long been in the writer's family. The widely discussed question of "Pensions for Women Teachers" will be treated in an early number of The Century by Miss Lillian C. Flint, of the Minneapolis schools, showing what is being done in the United States today, and what has so far been accomplished. "Afterward" is the title of Mrs. Edith Wharton's new story, which is to be published in an early issue of The Century. It is the story of an American couple's finding of an English country home, and their joy therein, reminding the reader, perhaps, of Kipling's "An Habitation Enforced." But, it is said, there is a strange and uncanny development of the theme, marking the story with grim tragedy, which is all Mrs. Wharton's own and altogether different from anything she has done hitherto. There are to be more of Timothy Cole's wood engravings direct from the French masters ancient and modern in The Century during 1910; and Joseph Pennell, who occupies a unique position as an etcher and draughtsman, has made a group of notable drawings of "Picturesque Pittsburg," to appear in The Century.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—Philip Lawson Brown has succeeded to the firm of Brown & Page, and will continue the business at 184 Summer Street.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The firm of Perkinpine & Higgins has been dissolved, George Perkinpine retiring. The business will be continued under the old firm name at 914 Arch Street, by Charles W. Higgins.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

UPTON SINCLAIR, Fairhope, Ala., announces that publication of his new novel, "Samuel the Seeker," has been postponed until the spring of 1910.

THE BOOK SUPPLY COMPANY, Chicago, began suit in the Circuit Court last week to enjoin David B. Clarkson from advertising their books for sale in connection with "bankrupt stocks" and "publishers' overstocks."

E. O. VAILE, JR., formerly with A. S. Barnes & Co., has become associated with the jobbing department of The Baker & Taylor Co., taking especial charge of their "Monthly Bulletin of Latest and Best Selling Books."

A COPY of the Kilmarnock Burns in the Brown Library was sold in Boston last week at Libbie's for $1025. It was a tall, clean copy of that rare first edition, and was purchased by a Scotchman, who will take it back to his native clime.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have just brought out William de Morgan's new book, "It Never Can Happen Again," which seems to need no better recommendation than that it is as good as its predecessors—"Joseph Vance," "Alice for Short" and "Somehow Good."

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have just ready an amusing skit by Arthur Loring Bruce, entitled "The Bridge Fiend." It is claimed for the book that it is absolutely unique among the fifty-seven varieties of bridge books, and that it is "the ideal gift for every bridge maniac—male or female, incipient or incurable, committed or at large."

REILLY & BRITTON Co. have just ready "Vehicles of the Air," by Victor Loughead, a popular exposition of modern aeronautics, with 140 working drawings, new and up-to-date in smallest detail. The subject is one of the great interests of the day, and the author has prepared his 500 pages of text with exhaustive knowledge of his subject.

will portray the lives of the heroes so dear to all boy readers. To some, however, Mr. Johnston will be remembered for much earlier work done as the president of the Harvard Lampoon.

CHARLES H. KERR & Co., Chicago, will publish on December 4 a work entitled "History of the Great American Fortunes," by Gustavus Myers, who has spent many years in gathering the facts. Volumes II and III will deal with the great railroad fortunes. Volume II is already in type and will probably be published in January. Volume III will follow a few weeks later.

JOHN R. ANDERSON, 76 Fifth Avenue, New York, has acquired the plates and is publishing a new issue of "Studies of Trees in Winter," by Annie Oakes Huntington, with an introduction by Dr. Charles S. Sargent, originally brought out by Knight & Millet. The book is illustrated with seventy full-page half-tone engravings from photographs taken by the author and twelve colored plates by Mary S. Morse.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready "Curiosities of the Sky," by Garrett P. Serviss, the astronomer; a new edition in one volume of A. Henry Savage Landor's narrative of Tibetan exploration, "In the Forbidden Land;" and a new edition, uniform with "Robinson Crusoe," of "The Swiss Family Robinson," containing over eighty drawings from sketches made in the West Indies by Louis Rhead, and an introduction by William Dean Howells.

THOMAS WHITTAKER, INC., have just ready a new volume of religio-philosophic essays by J. Brierley, of the London Christian World, entitled "Aspects of the Spiritual." They have also brought out an American edition of "Interlude—In a Time of Change, Ethical, Social and Theological," by the Rev. James Morris Whiton, one of the editors of the London Outlook. As the title indicates, the book is a re-statement of old positions.

RICHARD G. BADGER has ready Olin L. Lyman's "The Lash," a story of political and newspaper life; "Shawnee Wade," by Sarah J. Prichard, a story of Civil War times; a poem in fourteen chapters on the life of Christ, entitled "Christus Centuriarum," by the Rev. James Davidson Dingwell; also, a study of the church and state by a member of the Massachusetts bar, Francis T. Morton, entitled "The Roman Catholic Church and Its Relation to the Federal Government."

SMALL, MAYNARD & Co. have just ready Winthrop Packard's "Wildwood Ways," a collection of pleasant stories and shrewd observations of sylvan folk; Albert Schinz's "Anti-Pragmatism" will be brought out shortly. Miss Loie Fuller's "Fifteen Years of My Life" has been indefinitely postponed. Mrs. M. D. Frazar's "Practical Guide to Great Britain and Ireland;" also, Albert Hale's "Practical Guide to Latin American," prepared on the same plan as Mrs. Frazar's book.

GINN & COMPANY have published two new volumes, "The Tempest" and "Hamlet," in the New Hudson Shakespeare, with added features of value to students, such as the "Distribution of Characters," giving the lines spoken by each of the dramatic personæ, and detailed analysis of the plays. They have also just ready Willard N. Clute's "Laboratory Botany," containing information, suggestions and questions, intended to minimize the labor in introducing a student to laboratory and field botany.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just brought out a new book by Louis Albert Banks, D.D., entitled "The Problems of Youth." This book is made up of vigorous, sensible talks on practical matter of everyday life. The text abounds in charming, original illustrations. The striking freshness and fluency of Dr. Banks's style make the book particularly readable. The tone is familiar, personal, and designed to interest while instructing the young man or woman whose life lies ahead.

BROCKHAUS & PEHRSSON is the name of a new export and commission house established by Albert and Fritz Brockhaus and Nils Pehrsson in Leipzig, with representatives in Paris and London. The creation of this new firm, which will devote itself to the export of English books, papers and periodicals, will in no way affect the old firm of F. A. Brockhaus, of Leipzig, London and Paris, or the firm of Nils Pehrsson, of Leipzig and Paris. Mr. Kind, of London, and Mr. Koerner, of Paris, will act as representatives of both firms.

THE proprietors of Hampton's Magazine have made arrangements for an insurance policy on the life of Robert E. Peary. He has contracted with the publishers of that magazine for the serial rights to his story of the journey to the North Pole, with the accompanying pictures, for the consideration of $50,000. The story will appear in ten instalments, beginning with the issue for January, 1910. The insurance policy is for $50,000, and it will decrease in value $5000 each month, as the parts of Mr. Peary's story appear.

RICHARD G. BADGER, Boston, has just published "The Beginnings of New York," by Mary Isabella Forsyth, an interesting description of the old city of New York and old Kingston, the first state capital; "The Automatic Capitalists," by Will Payne, a clever story of the Chicago stock market which attracted much attention when it had its serial publication in the Saturday Evening Post; also, "The Countersign," by C. P. Jones, which is particularly interesting as the only book of fiction ever written on that unknown land, Tibet.

THE JOHN MCBRIDE CO. have just brought out three important books—"The Iron Cardinal," the romance of Richelieu, by Joseph McCabe, one of the most successful historical biographies published this year; "Love Letters of Famous Royalties and Commanders," such as those of Napoleon I., George IV., Moltke, Henry of Navarre, Lafayette, Nelson and others, selected by Lionel Strachey and prefaced with descriptive sketches by Walter Littlefield, a companion volume to "Love Letters of Poets and Novelists;" also, "Bradford's History of the Plymouth Settlement," rendered into modern English by Valerian Paget.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD will publish on the 1st of December one of the biggest books for boys that has been brought out this season. It is by Edward Stratemeyer, and is entitled "First at the North Pole, or, Two Boys in the Arctic Circle." The story is of two boy heroes who chanced on board a polar ship, and who pass through marvellous experiences that result in the attainment of the very "top of the world," side by side with Cook and Peary. All the practical details of polar exploration are given, and the thrilling romance of the "Call of the North" is made evident. The book is also rich in the history of great discoverers, and is profitable reading from that point of view without impairing its interest as a story. The book is illustrated by Charles Nuttall.

THE manifestation of so-called "poltergeist" phenomena displayed on shipboard by the famous Neapolitan medium, Eusapia Palladino, during her trip to this country last week has renewed interest in her exploits, and the remarkable series of seances she is to give this winter will probably keep the inquiring public on the qui-vive. It may be of interest to note that the best biography of Eusapia in English—there are numerous bulky volumes in French and Italian—is the two chapters devoted to her in Fremont Rider's "Are the Dead Alive?" recently published by B. W. Dodge & Company. The same firm will shortly publish, however, a complete biography, "Eusapia Palladino, and Her Phenomena," by Hereward Carrington, well known as a writer and investigators of psychic phenomena.

THE knighting of Frederick Orridge Macmillan, the oldest son of the late Daniel Macmillan, founder of the famous publishing house, recalls the fact to some of the older members of the trade that Sir Frederick lived for a number of years in New York, and that, in 1874, while in charge of the American branch of the house, he married Miss Georgiana Warren, daughter of Thomas Warren, of Newtown, L. I. He was formerly president of the Publishers' Association of Great Britain and Ireland, and is at present a trustee of the Booksellers' Provident Institution, as well as an official in several other associations and enterprises. Just before conferring knighthood, King Edward complimented Mr. Macmillan and his fellow directors of the National Hospital on the excellent results achieved by that institution.

PUBLISHERS, generally, are agreed that "best sellers," properly so-called, are not so much books of which phenomenally large editions are sold soon after their publication, as those for which there is a constant and steady demand, year after year. To this class belongs the Borrowings series, issued by the Dodge Publishing Company, comprising six titles—"Borrowings," "More Borrowings," "Thoughts," "Strength for Every Day," "For Thy Good Cheer," and "Helps to Happiness." The series was begun by the ladies of the Fabiola Hospital Association of San Francisco, who prepared a compilation of sayings of the world's best writers, for the aid of the sick and sorrowful, which proved so successful that the same association has followed it up with a succession of books upon the same lines, under the titles given above.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston, have brought out a revised edition of their "Gems of German Songs," which now contains 47 songs, representative of the periods from Mozart to Richard Strauss among the modern composers. Among those included are songs by Beethoven, Brahms, Franz, Jensen, Liszt, Raff, Rubinstein, Schubert, Schumann, with others of a slightly lower rank, such as Becker, Bohm, Coenen von Fielitz and Lassen. Here then is a treasure-house for teachers and singers who use German songs in their work either in the original text or in translations. It will be a safe guide in the matter of répertoire. In preparing these songs for publication special care has been taken with the English versions, to secure faithful translations and singable words. The contents of the volume, for high voice and that for low voice are identical, save for the difference in key.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have now put Neltje Blanchan's magnificent work on "The American Flower Garden" within reach of the general public, and offer a great treasure to the amateur whose garden is either extensive or the reverse, and every fact the beautiful book contains is immediately available by a fourteen-page index. There are four plates in full colors, eighty plates of sufficient size adequately to treat the subjects presented, and planting lists by Leonard Barrow. Other new publications are "Undine," with the Rackham illustrations; "The Crime of the Congo," by A. Conan Doyle, a story of the Congo atrocities, in which the author appeals to America to stop the slaughter done in the name of Belgium and from which author and publisher will give all profit to the righting of the wrong; "Actions and Reactions," in their edition of Kipling in flexible leather binding; also, several attractive "Nature Calendars."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish in December the first volume of a work by Rear-Admiral F. E. Chadwick on "The Relations of the United States with Spain." In this important work Admiral Chadwick takes up the relations of Spain and the United States from the first time they came in contact with each other, and throws new light on the discussion over the Louisiana purchase from France, the trouble over Florida, the events of the Grant Administration, and the Cuban question; tracing finally, in a clear, decisive and comprehensive manner, step by step, the incidents which led up to the Spanish War. No one is better fitted to write such a history than Admiral Chadwick, who commanded Admiral Sampson's flagship, the New York, during the war, and is well known as a close student of history. The first volume deals with the diplomatic side of the subject. In a subsequent volume Admiral Chadwick will discuss "The Spanish-American War."

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will bring out next week a new book by Mrs. Henry de la Pasture, author of "Peter's Mother," etc., who is at present in New York City to stage her new play, "Deborah of Tods," at the Maxine Elliott theatre, with Miss Elliott in the title-rôle. The new book is entitled "The Tyrant," the title-character of which is a domineering and miserly squire, who at the opening of the story intends to disinherit his eldest son. An attack of angina pectoris, brought on by rage, is the cause of his leaving England for some months, and giving his timid but discontented wife an opportunity of spending money on their children. Their daughter Annie, who marries a peer without her father's consent, contributes an ingenuous diary which is admirably girlish in matter and tone; and the "tyrant's" wife and mother are carefully drawn. The chief interest of the novel, however, lies in the spectacle of the tyranny of pain over a tyrant, though the author is not unduly pathological. They will publish at the same time "On the Branch," by Pierre de Coulevain, translated by Alys Hallard, which is said to be one of the most popular novels written in France by a woman—135 editions having already been sold.

JOHN LANE COMPANY have just brought out a novel entitled "The Shulamite," by Alice and Claude Askew. The scene of the book is laid chiefly in a small town in New England. The plot deals with a mother's jealousy of her daughter-in-law, a subject of great human interest and handled with the skill which has made popular Mr. and Mrs. Askew's other books. The stern, puritanical Rachel Lyons, the charming, sensitive Althea May and the virile Gillian Lyons form a trio whose personalities, different from one another as they are, are developed with both realism and power. Throughout the book run a keen appreciation of nature and an ability to describe her various beauties which add much to the charm of the story. Judging from "Between-time Poems," just published by this firm, Oliver Davies might be called exclusively a lyric poet. In sonnets and verses of various metres he gives his outlook on life, an outlook which is on the whole optimistic, though he is not blind to the realization of life as a struggle. He has, however, firm faith in God and a fixed belief in the things of the soul. His use of the two-line stanza, which is found in several of his poems, reminds one somewhat of Rossetti. The reader who wishes food for reflection during the contemplative hour should be interested in Mr. Davies's little book. Those who enjoy the satirical drawings of Cruikshank, Thackeray and a host of others, masters of the art of black and white, will be interested in "A Book Satyrs," a collection of allegorical drawings by Austin Osman Spare, also just published by John Lane Company. Mr. Spare depicts several of the follies and weaknesses of the day, among them fashion, politics, officialism, intemperance, quackery. His drawings show great originality and a sense of grim humor suggestive of the old masters.

BRENTANO'S, towards the end of the present month, will issue the very important "Book of Restoration Verse." This volume, (the third to appear, but the second chronologically in date, of the notable series Mr. Braithwaite plans to cover the entire range of British poetry,) has been arranged to contain an adequate representative selection from the British poets who flourished during the reign of Charles I and to the ascension of Queen Anne. The scheme of the book is to cover fully the somewhat neglected period of the Restoration hitherto given but scanty attention in any anthology designed for popular use. It fills the gap between the "Book of Elizabethan Verse" and the "Book of Georgian Verse," connecting the earlier and later periods, and completing the editor's selections of British poetry from 1557 to 1830. Following the same breadth of scope which enhanced the value and richness of his Elizabethan and Georgian anthology, Mr. Braithwaite here includes all the better known poets from Milton to Pope; beside these the lesser known poets are thoroughly represented by their best work, much of which has been newly brought to light and preserved in this anthology. Thus we find represented such poets as Milton, Vaughan, Marvell, Cowley, Cleveland, Dryden, Traherne, Sherburne, Stanley, Sedley, Cotton, Rochester, Prior, Parnell, Katherine Philips, Gay, Countess of Winchilsea, Swift and Pope. An attractive and striking feature of this volume is the selection of popular ballads, the editor including some fifty of the best specimens of traditional ballad poetry. Upward of four hundred and fifty poems appear in the present volume, a notable feature being that every poem is given in its entirety from the best text. Adequate explanatory and biographical notes, a glossary of obsolete or obscure words, and complete indexes of authors, titles and first lines give the utmost facility for reference and all needed help to the student. While the book contains eight hundred pages, the thin paper and excellent typography presents the work in a charmingly compact and pocketable volume. It is attractively bound uniform with the "Book of Elizabethan Verse," the "Book of Georgian Verse" and the "Oxford Book of English Verse."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish this week a volume on "Sir Philip Sidney," by Percy Addleshaw, who gives an account of the brilliant pageant in which Sir Philip was the chief figure, as well as a description of the characters and careers of his friends, his important contributions to literature, his essays in statesmanship and the details of his private life during his temporary abandonment of a public career, (with twelve illustrations;) "The Pilgrim Fathers, their Church and Colony," by Winnifred Cockshott, of St. Hilda's Hall, Oxford, who traces the gradual development of the Pilgrim Church, and sketches the history of the Plymouth colony during its independent life, showing how under Dutch influence the democratic principle gained ground in church and state, (with twelve illustrations;) also, "History of Astronomy," by George Forbes, and "History of Chemistry," by Sir Edward Thorpe, the first two volumes of A History of the Sciences, a series of volumes presenting an outline of the chief divisions of science, each of which is to deal briefly with the myths and fallacies which preceded the development of the given science and which will include biographical data of the great discoverers. They have recently published "English Love Poems, Old and New," edited by Horatio S. Kraus, member of the firm of Sturgis & Walton Co., a collection of the best poems representing the last four centuries; "American Inland Waterways," by Herbert Quick, showing the condition of our present day water systems, and comparing them with like systems abroad; "Housekeeping for Two," by the author of "Catering for Two"—Mrs. Alice L. James—a book intended to add to domestic comfort, economy and happiness, covering every item of interest to the housewife; Alexander C. Flick's "The Rise of the Mediæval Church," an account of the church from the first to the thirteenth century, omitting theological and dogmatic discussions; George S. Hellman's "The Hudson and Other Poems," poems of great beauty and imaginative power of timely interest; "Function, Feeling and Conduct," by Frederick Meakin, a close study of our moral nature, a subject vital and fundamental in human relationships, sure to appeal to all thoughtful readers; and "Fifty Years in Camp and Field—Diary of Major-General Ethan Allen Hitchcock, U. S. A.," edited by William A. Croffut, written by one of keen observation and excellent style, a history covering a stirring half century of our country, the Florida, Mexican and Civil Wars, with many reminiscences of the Major-General's great contemporaries.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

LEIPZIG-PARIS-LONDON E. C.
November 15th, 1909.

SIR,

Mr. Albert Brockhaus, Mr. Fritz Brockhaus and Mr. Nils Pehrsson have the pleasure of informing you that they have established under the style and title of an Export and Commission House, which will be devoted to the export of English Books. Papers and Periodicals.

This new departure will in no way affect our old firms, F. A. Brockhaus, Leipzig, London and Paris, and Niles Pehrsson, Leipzig and Paris, which will continue as before.

Mr. Kind of London and Mr. Koerner of Paris will act as representatives of the new firm as well as of all our old ones.

Relying on our combined experiences of many years standing, we venture to hope that this new enterprise of ours will succeed in still more extending the sale of English Literature abroad and considerably increase our mutual business relations.

We have the honour to be

Yours very truly

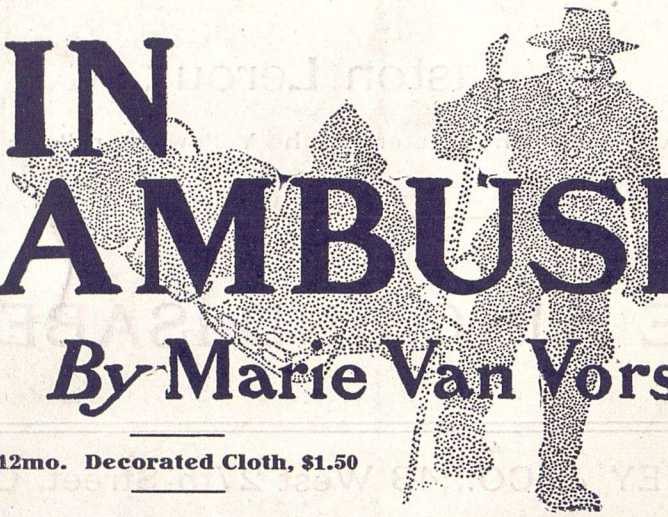
A VIRILE AND STRIKING NOVEL

With scenes laid in Alaska, Egypt and Kentucky



IN AMBUSH

By Marie Van Vorst

12mo. Decorated Cloth, $1.50

"It is a novel that engrosses the attention, a powerful portrayal of the strongest of the passions that beat against the souls of men and women. The story is related with graphic vigor and the incisive style is full of grace and beauty. Aside from its charming literary side, the plot is marked by originality and boldness of execution, which make it a virile drama.

"Miss Van Vorst has done her work well, and if it be glorification of a roue and a gambler with life's highest emotions, yet 'In Ambush' is a worthy piece of exquisite literature."—Philadelphia Record.

"A moving and dramatic tale."
—New York Globe.

"A tale full of thrills, and told masterfully."—Detroit News.

"An intense story, and there are passages in it that grip with the vigor of their descriptions."—Pittsburg Bulletin.

"Ingeniously devised, as we have seen, to win the vote of that large section of novel readers every unit in which believes herself to be the Right Woman for somebody or other."—London Saturday Review.

ROBERT HICHENS' Greatest Novel

Bella Donna

"'Bella Donna' is a country as well as a woman. It is Egypt as 'Kim' is India. . . . The public has seldom the opportunity to show its appreciation of a novel of such originality, charm, and power."
—N. Y. Times Saturday Review.
